GEO. YOUNG'S HISTORIC PEN

Souvenir of His Incumbency as the Last Territorial Secretary, That Will Be Passed Along to His Son.

Every right minded man who has filled an important sphere in life, likes to hand along to the succeeding generation, some fitting souvenir, that mutely tells more than could be written in a book of the activities of his day on the stage of action. George F.
Young, the retiring secretary of the territory has such a memento which he will preserve for his son, George F.
Young Jr. It is the pen with which he signed his last document as territorial secretary and he will pass it along to his boy, with the following explanatory epistle:

February 12, 1912.
Last instrument signed with this pen by George F. Young as the last Territorial Secretary of Arizona, was check No. 903, on the Bank of Arizona, Prescott, Arizona, for the sum of Fifteen Thousand Five and Seventy-four hundredths ($15,055.74) Dollars, payable to the Territorial Treasurer, E. E.
Kirkland, for insurance taxes and fees due the Territory of Arizona.

GEORGE YOUNG.
The story of this pen which is probably to become historic, is that when it was new it was one of two which together cost a nickel. But its intrinsic value rests in the fact that I was a pen he bought when he entered the office nearly three years ago, and which has been in constant use ever since. With it he has written many letters, signed thousands of them and has drawn or signed checks with it representing a lot more money than most men ever dream of having.

COMMISSIONERS WILL RESIGN

Railway Board Will Place Itself at the Pleasure of Governor Hunt, regardless of Any Legal Technicities That Exist.

The Arizona railway commission, at a meeting held yesterday, passed a resolution the substance of which was its decision to tender to the new governor the resignations of the three members of same, to be accepted at his pleasure. The text of the resolution, which was not discussed, was not disclosed and will not be until after the resignations are in the governor's hands. The preamble reads the facts that prompt the action which are in substance as follows:

poration commission will succeed to some of the duties of the present railway commission, but whether to all of them, until there is action by the legislature, is questionable. In other words, it is the feeling of the commissioners that technically they can continue to hold office until the legislature authorizes them to turn their duties over to the corporation commission through the enactment of laws making the powers and authority of the corporation more explicit.

Nevertheless, it is not the desire of purpose of the commissioners to retain their offices in the face of unfriendly criticism, nor yet do they desire to embarrass the incoming administration in the slightest way.
Therefore, they will tender their resignations to become effective at the pleasure of the new executive.

All-fresh Baseball New Advent at Coast University.
Varsity Has Adopted
Yale System.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Feb. 12.—Freshman intercollegiate baseball is another departure for the blue and gold institution. A nine has been organized and active training will begin this week for the first annual contest. This match will be played with the University of Southern California, on the local diamond, on Saturday, March 23. While the contest will be intercollegiate in name, nationals will not be awarded to the freshman aggregation unless they prove a strong nine during the season of preliminary contests.

Commencing this week, the large baseball squad now training for the season's sport will be split into two divisions. The first will be under Coach Schaeffer on California field, and will consist only of old players and supermen. The lower division of freshmen and new players will practice on the old diamond under the newly appointed R. A. Cor-lett, '12, a member of last year's variety aggregation, who is assistant coach. This system of training is patterned after the Yale system and is said to be very successful in the east.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 12.—Weir-

Mexico to Vancouver, and an express company assumed the risk of trans-

The elegant school house at Williams, Arizona, erected 1903, recently burned. The cost of building and contents was $22,000 with only $15,000 insurance. The Arizona Fire Insurance company had its adjuster on the ground next day after the fire and a check for the full amount was paid the trustees before any of the other companies had made settlement. This shows the advantage of insuring in
